

Hannah Hizer

2/17/26

Domain 3D: Using Assessments in Teaching

Above is an anonymized exit ticket with feedback.

Reflection: This lesson was incredibly difficult for my students. They are understandably having a difficult time determining how to estimate in measuring using objects other than rulers and yardsticks. These exit tickets are done at the end of each math lesson and they correlate to the lesson directly. By having this daily check-in, I am able to determine who needs more assistance in this area. I discovered on this particular day that my students needed extra practice with this material.